Ribbon Reefs Freediving Retreat

The Pressure Project is teaming up with Nadja Dubislav who has recently completed her Freediving Instructor course with us. Nadja has worked on Ocean Quest and knows the area very well! We are both very excited to bring this exciting trip to you and share the experience.

Can you imagine your self on a 4 days 4 nights freediving retreat aboard the 3 story live-aboard vessel Ocean Quest exploring the immaculate Ribbon Reefs?

The Ribbons is made out of 10 individual reef systems that stretch over 120km located in far north Queensland. This stunning area is home to an impressive biodiversity and is one of Sir David Attenborough's favourite places in this world.

Imagine your self waking up on the ocean with gorgeous surroundings learning new skills, reaching new depths and swimming amongst 1625 different species of fish. When we're not diving we might be doing some yoga/breath work or simply relaxing on one of 2 sundecks aboard Ocean Quest. To top it all off there is an in house chef cooking up delicious meals for in between line diving and exploring who can cater to all needs.

This trip is the first of it's kind so all of us are basically pioneers!

What to expect

The first day on the 29th of october we will board live-aboard Ocean Quest in Cairns and make our way to one of the local reefs where we will start our line diving and exploring. At night we'll get up close and personal with the local predators with Sharks In The Dark and after dessert we will start our journey north.

October 30th to November 1st will be filled with stunning ocean sunrises, morning line diving, yoga , meditation, breathworkshops, specialist workshops, afternoon exploration, marine chats, amazing sunsets and ofcourse plenty of time for relaxation.

There is even the option to complete a course on this pioneering trip. For all the students this adventure will start a day early with classroom and pool.
